PIES & PASTRIES

BAKED GOODS

A character with the MASTER CHEF heroic ability and access to an oven can take a shift to bake a tray (a full item slot worth) of baked goods. If you have a fully equipped kitchen at your disposal, you can bake several trays during the same shift. Each tray of baked goods requires one unit or dose of each of the listed ingredients – water is not listed but is used in most recipes.

In a pinch, you can create simple recipes like trail bread or grain bars with only a field kitchen.

CONSUMING BAKED GOODS: Unlike drinking a potion, you cannot eat these baked goods during combat. When eaten during a stretch rest, they grant their effects in addition to effects you gain from the rest. Once you have eaten goods that together have a weight of 1/4, you have covered your need of food for the day.

If your group uses the Memento optional rule (Rulebook, p. 27), you cannot recover a condition from both the memento and a baked good during the same stretch rest.
